Questex Media Group, Inc. has announced today the recipients of its TechLearn "Best of Show" Awards, honoring exhibitors and products with the best potential to change the future of the learning and training industry. The presentations were made during a ceremony held Tuesday morning, September 27, at TechLearn at the Bellagio Hotel in Las Vegas.

TechLearn is the most powerful, practitioner-led conference available, covering issues for business, education, and government leaders using learning and training to develop workforce skills, engage customers and provide interactive programs in their organizations. With executives from more than 60 of the world's leading organizations speaking in this year's program, TechLearn is the leading forum on technology-, process-, and people-related strategies that drive organizational performance through learning.

The judges, all learning and training industry experts, presented awards to ten TechLearn exhibitors in several categories. Exhibitors submitted product nominations and the entries were judged on ease of integration, implementation, system quality, customer service features and return on investment.

"With the strength and quality of submissions for TechLearn's inaugural Best of Show awards, the judges had a most difficult time determining this year's award winners," said Christina Condos, group show director of Questex Media. "Through their hard work, we are confident that the winning selections represent the most cutting-edge solutions in the learning and training industry today."
